

Does your child ...

at 6 years:

- use socially appropriate forms of communication (e.g. address elders respectfully, use 'please', 'thankyou' appropriately)?
- enjoy talking about family and friends to others?
- have long conversations by asking questions?
- engage in highly imaginative play and in drama without props, using dialogues and enacting more than one character?
- prefer playing in groups of the same gender?
- match facial expressions, movements, body language, tone of voice and gestures to what he is saying?
- use pronouns such as "I", "you", "he", "she"?

A child who fails in some of the above areas may have a developmental language disorder. Early identification of the disorder leads to early intervention and better long term prospects for the child.

The Com DEALL Trust is committed towards early identification and intervention for children with developmental language disorders.

If you feel that your child has difficulty in more than one of the above areas, please contact us at:
